

Phase I...

LEST WE FORGET

As we said in the Foreward, it is not our purpose to write an encyclopedia. Lots of things have happened to us which are bright in our memories, and which were not mentioned here. Most of the men who deserve mention will not find their names among the pages of this history. We condensed the numerous events at Bitche and magnified some other things. We do not claim to have written the complete history of Dog Company. What we hope to have done is to leave with you an account of our actions over here, so that you can better remember your own experiences, the buddies who were close to you, and the part you played in making of this history.

We wish that we could have given credit to all of those who deserve it, for the part they played. Throughout our actions, the drivers did a bang-up job of transportation, transporting us, bringing up supplies and hot chow, and blackout-driving. The kitchen crew, following Colonel Zehner's policy, got us more hot meals, on the average, than most other line companies in the regiment. When we had to move suddenly or for long distances, the kitchen crew stuck right with us, and did its best to keep us from the K and C rations. We certainly weren't over-fed plenty of times, but the supply situation was often critical. The Medics, also, deserve credit for the prompt attention which they paid to our needs and to the sacrifices which they made. Myers and Courter kept our supply problems straightened out, and Wallace, way back where there wasn't hot water part of the day, kept our records straight and the pay coming.

What will happen to us once we return to the States is anybody's guess. Most of us should soon return to civilian life, and what will happen to us then is up to us. We have passed through the "it's in the cards" stage. Perhaps our experiences have made us better men — more competent to accept responsibilities, bear up under hard times, and to get along with our fellow-men. If so, then our privations, discomforts and tragic losses might not have been for nothing. Perhaps too, we have learned that Americans are not different, basically from other peoples . . . that Europeans are like us, but haven't our advantages. Europe has troubles which are very definitely our concern, and if we go home feeling that the British are stupid, the French corrupt, the Italians, Poles and Russians inferior to us, while the Germans are clean, methodical and hardworking, then we shall have sacrificed lives and blood for nothing. So far, our thinking has been somewhat corrupted by what we have allowed ourselves to believe; but let us not forget who our enemies were and are, and who our allies have been. We are the future leaders of America, and many of the ideas which we shall have of the rest of the world are being formed here. Our fathers went through what we have just finished, and how we use what we have learned will determine whether or not our sons are sent over here to fight.

With the fervent hope that there will be no more bloody conflicts in which we, or children, or mankind will be involved, we close this account of Dog Company — — — —

COMPANY ROSTER

The following is a roster of officers and men who came overseas with the company and who joined us in Europe. To avoid repetition of names, we are listing the men according to the last platoon in which they served, and are crediting them with their most recently-achieved rank.

Decorations are abbreviated thusly: Bronze Star (BS); Oak Leaf Cluster (OLC); Purple Heart (PH); Distinguished Service Cross (DSC); Silver Star (SS); Presidential Citation (PC); and Combat Infantry Badge (CIB).
